

Indonesia Struck by a 6.6-magnitude Earthquake

An earthquake, measured at the magnitude of 6.6, struck Palu City on the Indonesian island of Sulawesi Saturday (Aug. 18). The temblor triggered landslides that cut off residents in rural Indonesia, and helicopters were sent to drop food and water Monday the 20th. During the tremor, More than 450 homes and building were destroyed; and about 6 were killed. Rescuers have been striving to several villages cut off by landslides; meanwhile, teams from disaster management, health, and welfare have been involved to provide emergency assistance.