

Wild fire struck Australia's Blue Mountain Area

Australia's Blue Mountains' bushfires had a total number of 73 fires are burning across the state, 29 of which are uncontained and raging across a wide swath of Australia's most populous state destroying at least 193 homes in the that area. Many families living in the Blue Mountains had returned home, although they should be aware that conditions could still change. More than 1,500 Australian firefighters battled the flames.