

A 5.9 Quake Struck off the Coast of Mexico

An earthquake with a preliminary magnitude of 5.9 occurred in the Gulf of California, off the coast of northwestern Mexico. According to Mexico's National Seismological Service, the epicenter was located about 62 miles from Los Mochis, Sinaloa and around 620 miles from Tijuana, Baja California. No damages or injuries have been reported from the earthquake so far.