

EF-1 Tornado Strikes Mississippi State

According to the National Weather Service in Jackson, an EF-1 tornado with winds of 100 mph swept through the town of Cleveland, Mississippi on the evening of September 25. As the storm ripped through the Stanton subdivision, numerous trees were uprooted, structures damaged, and the county's communication network knocked out. So far no injuries have been reported.