

Volcano Activity in Chile Casts Influence across the Pacific Ocean

The Puyehue-CordonCaulle Volcano has been activated since early June, and the volcanic ashes had reached Australia and New Zealand, urging the cancelation of outbound flights from Melbourne, with affected travellers estimated over 8,000. The ashes were predicted to remain affecting the nations for days. The Qantas Airline approved refund for cancelation while the Air New Zealand remained flights between the two nations but would keep track of the situation.